Forecast For Northeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Wednesday 29 Sep 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Fine tonight, but unsettled and windy to end the week.

This Evening and Tonight:
Skies clearing into the evening, and turning chilly for a time. However, thickening cloud will return from the west later, with rain, some heavy, arriving before daybreak. Winds freshen again. Minimum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Thursday:
Outbreaks of rain, occasionally heavy, will tend to gradually ease through the morning, with drier conditions and some cloud breaks developing into the day. Rather windy again. Maximum temperature 16 deg C (61 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
A very unsettled spell with showers or longer spells of rain, these sometimes heavy or thundery. Often windy, with gales over the hills at times, perhaps generally very windy Sunday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.